General comments
Agro Serra Industrial (formerly known as Agropecuária e Industrial Serra Grande) is one of the largest producers of sugarcane for ethanol in Maranhão. In 2005/2006, the company was responsible for 60% of Maranhão's production of ethanol, in cubic meters. Petrobras and Ipiranga used to be ethanol customers from Agrosserra. It also produces soy beans and other soft commodities. In 2005, labor fiscals rescued 652 workers working in slave-like conditions in sugarcane fields, in workdays above 14 hours without weekly rest (1). When the company was included in the “dirty list” of slave labour due to the mentioned case, they both mentioned commercial restriction being adopted or under consideration (2). In 2018, Brasilagro, a farmland company, announced the investment of BRL 1,4 billion in the Farm São José in partnership with Agro Serra for crop and ethanol production (3). In 2012, AgroSerra was listed by the Brazilian government among 169 companies compromised to improve working conditions in the sugarcane sector (4)(5). In 2013, Fazenda São José and Agropecuária e Industrial Serra Grande received the RTRS (Round Table on Responsible Soy) certification (6). In 2016, the headquarters of Agro Serra was investigated by Brazil's Federal Police under Operação Lava-Jato (Car-Wash Operation) for participation in a bribing scheme in the construction of railways Ferrovia Norte-Sul (FNS) and Integração Oeste-Leste (FIOL). The company alleges it was not the target of the operation and the task force that came to its office retrieved documents from a former employee (7).
