| The Okamoto family is linked to land conflict around the JJF case, and the property of Fazenda Sacuri is inside the area of Fazenda São José (1). They are originally from Goierê (PR), where Vicente Mashahiro Okamoto was mayor for six mandates. He is also one of the founders of Coaceral, a cooperative of producers involved in the JJF case. JJF case is one of the most prominent land-grabbing cases in Brazil (2). José Valter Dias owns JJF Holding and Participações, and together the company and the owner claim the ownership of 270,065 ha in a contiguous area in Formosa do Rio Preto (BA). In March 2019, the National Justice Council (CNJ) suspended an official document that gives the property rights of 366,000 ha of land in Bahia to José Valter Dias (3). Allegedly, farmers that live on these farms were forced to pay disproportionate taxes (80 sacks of soybean per hectare) to stay in the area. In a due hearing, members of the Agriculture Committee of Formosa do Rio Preto alleged that José Valter Dias had acquired his lands through illegal papers, extorting producers who were settled in the region for 30 years (4). In December 2018, this land tenure conflict case was the topic of a public hearing in the National Congress (5). There may be a possible connection to Bunge, Amaggi &amp; LD, and Cargill, as these traders' silos are inside JJF/José Valter Dias properties. Apart from the land dispute between large-scale farmers, José Valter Dias operations have advanced over a conservation unit, and the Estação Ecológica Serra Geral do Tocantins. In February 2019, a decision from Bahia's Court of Justice granted Dias access to deforest 52,000 hectares of native vegetation inside the reserve, based on the argument that the Chico Mendes Institute for Biodiversity (ICMBio) didn't follow the deadlines for the dispossession of the farms he owns inside that area (6). |  |  |                   |
